

Meet our Jawun secondees!

BBY currently has two Jawun secondees who are sharing their knowledge, skills and experience by contributing to BBY's work through a short-term placement. Read on to learn about what they have been working on while with us for 6 weeks:

Jess Williams

Manager, Department of Industry, Science and Resources, Australian Government

Specialising in policy, strategy, and stakeholder engagement

While at BBY, Jess is progressing the efforts of regional organisations to ensure self-determination of Kimberley Aboriginal people through design of a Kimberley Aboriginal Regional Body, by scanning and cross comparing the roles of existing Kimberley peaks and ACCOs, and considering criteria and policy that may help to inform design principles and roles of a regional body. Jess has also been working on a Data Capability Framework to build capability of ACCOs; and supporting and mentoring BBY's Policy Adviser.

Shannon Robertson

Senior Consultant from KPMG, Sydney

Specialising in communications and stakeholder engagement

While at BBY, Shannon has been working on a Communications and Engagement Strategy for the upcoming Voice referendum. This strategy aims to enable the people of the Kimberley region to better understand what the referendum is and what it will mean, while empowering our people to be part of a momentous change through a Yes vote. On top of this, Shannon has been coordinating events to raise awareness on the referendum, creating content to be shared across social media and updating BBY's social media policy.
